

Sharing Our Learnings with Partners Nationwide

What This Means

Across the nation, CYC coaches and supports organizations and communities to reimagine evidence-based program implementation with equity at the center. This includes everything from workforce and project management, to training and logistics, to data and evaluation to ensure that programs work for children, youth, and families. Evidence-based programs must be regularly monitored to ensure fidelity, and this is more than a technicality, it's an essential step that's needed to correctly execute this part of the science. That's why we love supporting other communities to get it right.

As the common sense translator for academic implementation concepts and frameworks, our technical assistance is invaluable to practitioners in the field. We develop online resources, tools, and logistical implementation support along with personalized coaching. We also foster a network of connections, peer support, and advice from all of our partners across the nation. Our brand of coaching and support is unique, marrying the best academia has to offer with what it actually takes to implement in communities.

How We Do It

Our work has been evaluated and published by the Stanford Social Innovation Review, Pew Results First, Penn State University, The University of Washington, Brown University, and the Annie E. Casey Foundation.

We integrate key strategies for our partners, including:

- Data-based decision-making.
- Operationalizing equity.
- Investing for outcomes.
- Best-in-class implementation science.
- Community-systems engagement.
- Community-identified priorities.
- Training modules that support unparalleled outcomes.
- Public education and data sharing.

Proof in Performance

We provide coaching and guided facilitation through the development of online resources, tools, logistical support, and real world implementation experience with personalized consultation. Our national training sites include communities in Memphis, Miami, Albuquerque, Utah, the Mississippi Delta, and Chicago.

Our Growth Plan

We are assembling a National Race Equity Implementation Team. We are deliberately moving forward with opportunities that advance equity and the scale of evidence nationally, and we are looking for partners to join us. We can:

- Provide philanthropists and investors with partnership, significant impact numbers, a unique approach to implementation, as well as thought leadership in systemic change.
- Connect researchers who are advancing behavioral health research with on-the-ground implementation—bolstering the value of programming, outcomes, and validating site data for projects across the nation.
- Provide big systems thinkers, decision makers, and elected officials with partnership, collaboration, and a growing portfolio of programs that will change their community in measurable ways, both large and small.
